HOOVER AND ROOSEVELT MEET TODAY

Debtor Nations Can Expect no Offer to Cancel or Prolong Payment

MEET AFTER 3:30

President-elect Says Meeting Informal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The curious eyes of Europe were turned today on an upstairs chamber of the White House where, this afternoon, President Hoover will hold his highly publicized conference with President-elect Roosevelt over international debts, disarmament and world economics.

Little in the way of aid or comfort for the debtor nations, now asking postponement of their payments due Dec. 15, was expected to come from the meeting between the executive and the man who will succeed him. Congress is standing 100 percent against further extension of the moratorium and will not countenance any form of revision, so their is little the Messrs. Hoover and Roosevelt can do even should they be so inclined.

MAY STUDY EQUIV

President Hoover probably will propose to Gov. Roosevelt that the World War debt funding commission should be revised to inquire into the equity of the debts. The President made this proposal to Congress a year ago and it was ignored. If he makes it again next month, it undoubtedly will receive the same treatment.

Whatever suggestions Mr. Hoover makes to the president-elect, and he is reported to have "very definite ideas on the subject"—the question of Gov. Roosevelt's public support of those suggestions is an entirely different matter. All reports from Albany have indicated that the Governor is going to take the position the whole problem belongs to the Hoover administration, lock, stock and barrel, right up to March 4.

This afternoon's conference will be held in the historic Lincoln study. At President Hoover's elbow will be Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills. Giving Gov. Roosevelt advice will be Prof. Raymond Moley, of Columbia, a prominent member of the Roosevelt "brain trust" during the campaign no stenographer will be present, and the meeting, in accordance with the expressed wishes of the president-elect, will be "personal and informal."

ARRIVES AT 3:30

Gov. Roosevelt's southbound train arrives here at 3:30 this afternoon. Members of the cabinet and White House aides will be at station to greet him. The Governor will be taken immediately to the presidential limousine, to the south entrance of the White House and thence by elevator to the second floor.

GOV. WHITE TO RENAME HIS CABINET

No Change in Official Family Contemplated by Ohio's Governor

ALL DEMOCRATS

Must Name Man for Bricker's Post

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22.—Governor George White will reappoint all members of his present cabinet at the beginning of his second term in January, he told International News Service today.

"The voters' satisfaction with my administration, as expressed at the polls on Nov. 8, convinces me that there should be no change in my official family," the chief executive declared.

The governor's statement means unquestionably that Commerce Director Theodore H. Tangeman, Finance Director Howard L. Bevis and Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson will continue as his "inner council" and will be consulted on all important matters of policy during 1933 and 1934 as they were in 1931 and 1932.

"ALL TO ACCEPT"

The chief executive added that he has every reason to believe that all cabinet members will accept reappointment.

Mr. White's cabinet line-up when he is re-inaugurated on Monday, Jan. 9, will therefore be as follows:

Adjutant General—Frank D. Henderson of Columbus.

Director of Agriculture—Earl Mansfield of Ottawa.

Director of Commerce—Theodore H. Tangeman of Wapakoneta.

Director of Finance—Howard L. Bevis of Cincinnati.

Director of Highways—O. W. Jewell of Marietta.

Director of Welfare—John Mcweeney of Wooster.

Director of Health—H. G. Southard of Marysville.

Director of Public Works—T. S. Brindle of Ashland.

Director of Industrial Relations—Thomas A. Edmondson of Urbana.

Director of Education—Dr. E. O. Skinner of Wilmington.

With one exception, this is the same cabinet originally chosen by the governor for his first term.

Director of Agriculture—H. S. Guthrie resigned due to ill health during the past summer and Hanfield was named in his place. Brindle and Skinner were not appointed until late in the term, as they succeeded overlapping terms.

ALL DEMOCRATS

The present cabinet set-up is 100 per cent Democratic.

Dozens of lesser appointments are to be made by the governor next year. The most important will be to the vacancy on the utilities commission caused by the election of John W. Bricker, Republican, as attorney general. A Democrat will be named, giving the Democrats a two-to-one hold on the commission. Seventeen minor jobs in the commission are expected to change hands as a result.

REPORT NELSON LIVES

PEIPING, Nov. 22.—A faint spark of hope that the Reverend Burt Nelson, American missionary, officially reported murdered by Communist bandits on Aug. 23, may still be alive reached the American legation today.

Chinese scouts sent out to investigate the missionary's reported death, said that they had spoken to a number of released Chinese captives who declared they saw the Rev. Nelson and another foreigner being carried across the Peiping-Hankow railway tracks alive on Oct. 5.

ASHEVILLE, N. C. Nov. 22.—The man who for many weeks has been hailed as a great actor high up in the time of a popular mountain village of Western N. C., today had become his former self, Colonel Raymond Brown, crusader in the cause of prohibition and reform.

Along with the happiness he claimed was his during the weeks he played the part of a nervous little woman who was boys and girls went the way of a shaggy beard and the comfort of a pair of overalls.

Both were discarded shortly after the dramatic scene in the Appalachian hill mental sanitarium here yesterday, after noon when he looked into the twitching face of the nervous little woman who was his hand and exclaimed "Margaret" in recognition of her as the wife that had shared his life for twenty seven years.

R. R. ALLOWED TO ABANDON TWO TRAINS

State Utilities Commission Acts Favorably on N. & W. Petition

LEAVES 2 TRAINS

Local Council Does Not Oppose Move

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22.—Due to decreased passenger traffic and resulting operating losses the Norfolk and Western Railway Co. was authorized today by the State Utilities Commission to abandon further operation effective Dec. 31 of two passenger trains No. 31 and 32 between Columbus and Portsmouth.

Abandonment of these two trains will reduce the service between Columbus and Portsmouth to only one round trip daily.

LEAVES 2 TRAINS

Train No. 31 leaves Portsmouth at 7:30 a. m. reaching Columbus at 10:20 a. m. and train No. 32 leaves Columbus at 6:15 p. m. arriving at Portsmouth at 9:10 p. m. daily.

Hereafter the service will consist of train Nos. 35 leaving Portsmouth at 2:35 p. m. arriving at Columbus at 5:25 p. m. and train No. 36 leaving Columbus at 9:25 a. m. and arriving at Portsmouth at 12:30 p. m. daily.

The commission held that the proposed curtailment of service is reasonable "having due regard for the welfare of the public the cost of maintaining said passenger train service and the traffic handled thereupon and the revenue arising therefrom."

TRAFFIC FALLS OFF

In its application the railroad declared that passenger traffic on its trains "has greatly fallen off in recent years" and that the revenue is "constantly diminishing until the service does not pay for itself." "That curtailment in passenger service is justified," "that continued operation of the train is no longer necessary in the public interests" and that the public interests "will be fully, conveniently and efficiently served by the revised passenger train service to be continued in operation."

city. Americans have celebrated annually for more than three hundred years a day set apart for the offering of thanks to God.

Reverently approach the observance of that custom this year with a deeper understanding of the need for Divine guidance that moved our forefathers to establish it.

"We have been chastened by experiences brought upon us by human frailty. We have been afflicted by the tragic consequences of strife, selfishness and the pursuit of unworthy aims.

TURN TO CREATOR

"In the troubled hours of our adversity we have turned to the Creator, seeking hope, strength and vision. That these have been granted to us is evidenced by the fact that as a people we have been sustained by faith, patience and courage which are enabling us to overcome errors of mankind and to progress toward realization of our national life. We are being shown the way toward the dawn of a happier tomorrow.

"Through trial, we have come to new conceptions of the responsibilities of individuals, of society and of government. Our lives have been enriched by a keener appreciation of moral values. Perceiving more clearly the interdependence of neighbors and communities, we have developed a new sense of obligation to share material blessings in the interest of the common weal.

"For such satisfactions of mind and heart, we should be especially grateful this Thanksgiving Day.

"Refreshing ourselves at the fountain of our faith, re-dedicating ourselves to the high purposes of Divine Providence, facing the future unafraid, certain of triumph over misfortune, let us give thanks.

ASSIST OTHERS

"And as we gather prayerfully in our homes and in our places of worship, let us resolve that none of those among us who possess the means to succor them.

"In accordance with the proclamation of the President of the United States, I, George White, Governor of Ohio, designate Thursday, November 24th, 1932, as Thanksgiving Day and request that it be observed throughout the state as a holiday.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Ohio to be affixed. Done at the city of Columbus, Ohio, this twenty-first day of November, A. D., 1932, and of the Independence of the United States the One Hundred and Fifty-Sixth.

A Home Without Telephone Service Can Be Mighty Like a Prison

The house without a telephone has no quick communication with the outside world. There is no cheery ring of a friendly "telephone visit"—no happy, sudden invitation—no pleasant, timely exchange of greetings—and no immediate news of the "away from home" members of the family or the old folks.

And this home is apt to be mighty like a prison. Like a prison, too, it may affect the health of the household—because there are so few outside interests. Make sure your home is healthy and happy with a telephone. Just call our office and we'll arrange for it.

er large or numerous. As to the doorways, we have not found one which we could assign to an earlier date than 1825.

As late as 1880, the Williams Brothers History of Franklin and Pickaway Counties, said: "An architectural peculiarity of the place is that many, even of the more elegant houses, are built close to the street, without yards or fences, or the possibility of any. As many of the houses are not provided with halls, the parlors open directly upon the sidewalk, and here, during the summer season, the families and their guests are accustomed to bring their chairs in the cool of the day, to enjoy a social chat and the evening breeze."

The rectangular style of building prevailed. Plain gabled roofs, one or two square rooms in front, with the door in the center or at the side, a few with hallways or narrow entries. The variety in architecture being provided by the number and arrangement of the rooms to the rear, and whether the gabled end was to the front or side of the building.

Gabled and—hipped—roofs, dormer windows, pediments, cornices and other ornamental features and variations were absent from the exteriors of these earliest houses in Circleville.

During the 1830's and 1840's many of our finest old houses were built.

The most persistent feature of the doorways of many of the beautiful old houses in neighboring towns, and even our own vicinity seems to have been the "fan-lights," the graceful millioned-companions of classic portals.

The picture of the doorway at the Circleville Athletic Club has several noteworthy points. On a postal card from Portsmouth, N. H., the Pierce mansion has an arched door-frame, with a key-stone at its top, that to all appearances, is the twin of the C. A. C. doorway. The back part of this house, the first or second brick residence in Circleville, was built in 1816. The front part, in which this door is found, was built in 1832.

Another house which has an ornamental keystone, set in an unusual arch, has the same design carried out in the window-caps. This is the "Josiah Renick" house, built by Guy W. Donae, and the present Groce home.

With side-lights and transoms, the "William Renick" house frames a door that in panelling and door knocker duplicated a Philadelphia door of 1809.

The first builder in Circleville to make a bold break from traditional design was Joseph "Olds," who in 1842, built the brick house, at the northwest corner of Main and Pickaway-sts, which has since 1870 been the Marfield residence.

The most characteristic doorways of Circleville are those of the side-light and transom type. Through every period and every phase of building, this design has persisted. Its many variations have produced some good, some bad, and some indifferent doorways, but in most cases has had a better effect than knocking the panels out of our walnut doors or the too profuse use of glass.

In the last few years some of our new homes have gone directly back to the best of early American design and returning with these designs, on a less elaborate scale, the "Darby and Joan" of architecture—brick and iron.

The art of making cast iron came into practical usage after the beginning of the nineteenth century, and its introduction into architecture followed to an amazing extent.

The picture of Circleville, in 1856, shows the "Dr. Olds residence" with its iron fence; another picture shows a recent view of its gate. A drawing of the "Marfield Bank" shows our present Second National when quite new. Today the lower grill is missing and iron doors have been added.

A number of houses are left, practically unchanged, that were built constantly, at the time when iron was most used for decorative purposes. One of these is the Turney-Brunner house. The wood-work on this door was done by a local carpenter, trained as a cabinet maker, and the dog heads on the lower panels were carved by hand.

Two bits of iron work connected with our early doorways, which should not be omitted, are foot-scrappers and door stops.

It is so very hard to keep both the times and the people good.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

THE WAR WHOOP

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by N. C. Wyeth... inspired by the blood-curdling yells of war-mad savages, whose barbaric cruelty held America's early settlers in a constant state of terror. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

A Christmas Suggestion

CHRISTMAS is not too far away to begin planning for it.

Many of the churches have already begun to lay plans for the proper observance of Christ's natal day.

There is so much about Christmas coming up with thoughts of it that, if one were to write, he easily could cover many pages and scarcely know it—and yet, half of this sweetest story would remain untold.

What a happy thing it would be this year to pick out somebody you know who ordinarily will not have a happy Christmas—somebody, whose life is not all "roses and sunshine," somebody, whose soul has been pinched and his heart choked by the circumstances of fate, over which he or she had no control, but who remains firm in the conviction that there still is a Santa Claus, even though Santa disappeared out of his or her life in childhood forever.

Think a little and you will see in your mind this man or woman, or maybe a child. On every side they will be found. If you knew the inside story of that man or woman you do not like because of "something or other," perhaps if you would drain a little closer and raise the curtain of their lives, you would stand back in amazement, and then wonder why you had disliked them without knowing why. Perhaps—but why go on?

Let us begin now to think of some one to make happy this Christmas—some one who is undoubtedly overlooked in the mad, glad rush. Perhaps this some one may be rich or well-to-do financially; it does not matter, whether rich or poor, make it a point this year to remember some of those unfortunate, unhappy victims around, whose lives fate seems to have hung a pall.

He who laughs first laughs most often.

Football

CRITICS of modern college football picture it as an organized and commercialized spectacle. They even complain that the cheering sections are organized and lack that desired amateurish spontaneity. Few will deny that college football today is a "big business," with some teams collecting as much as $300,000 in gate receipts in one short season and with crops of high salaried coaches and trainers and large squads of subsidized players, but after all the commercialism found in football is something different from that associated with professional baseball. It may be traditions, it may be the players and those who fill the gridiron stands and those who fill the baseball bleachers, but compared with baseball the sport of football is decidedly unprofessional and uncommercialized.

The football player who excels under its present stage of development must have physical endurance and strength and mental alertness. Both are splendid qualities for the business of making a living out of sport. No better evidence that football is played to the king's taste today could be found than the fact that never did it so strongly compete with baseball for the coveted title of the Great American Game.

If you pass the time, time will pass you.

Among the outstanding talks on the Farm Night program for December are: "Some Dairy Experiments at Wooster. What Chicks Inherit, the Farmer's Voice in Government and What the Government Spent for Agriculture Farm Night" is broadcast from the state-owned radio station, WEAQ, every Monday night from 8 to 10.

Ohio's 4-H clubs plan to send a delegation of 15 rural boys and girls to the National 4-H Club Congress at Chicago, November 27 to December 1. The Ohio delegates will meet with about a thousand boys and girls from practically all states in the country in a convention which represents the high point in the national 4-H club program participated in by 500,000 rural people between the ages of 10 and 20.

The estimated real estate mortgage indebtedness on Ohio farms was 250 million dollars in 1931. This indebtedness was on approximately one-third of the farms in the state. At 6 percent interest, the interest to be paid by about a third of Ohio's farmers on their real estate mortgages amounted to 15 million dollars. To have kept the interest paid on this debt, with no payments on the principal, would have taken 63 per cent of the net cash income of this group of farmers.

SYNOPSIS

Young and pretty Patricia Braithwaite becomes engaged to wealthy, middle-aged Harvey Blaine to relieve her father's financial situation. She hopes in vain that handsome Jack Lawrence, whom she met once—and the only man she ever wanted to kiss her—will rescue her from Blaine. In despair, she turns to Jimmie Warren, her Aunt Pamela's husband. They become infatuated. Aunt Pamela blames herself for leading Pat to believe she no longer loved her husband. The fear of losing him makes Pamela realize how much she really cares. Finally, Jack arrives. Pat learns he is the son of wealthy Senator Lawrence, who was kidnapped a few years ago when he went to Mexico to investigate his father's property. Pat tells him he is too late as she loves Jimmie but Jack refuses to acknowledge defeat and a bitter rivalry develops between the two men. For days Jimmie avoids Pat. Unable to stand the strain, she determines to have an understanding with him and asks him to dance with her. Overcome with emotion, Pat faints in Jimmie's arms. He is conscious of everyone's stares. As they leave the dance floor, Jack relieves the embarrassing situation by joining them. Pamela is grateful to Jack. She wires Mr. Braithwaite to come and get Pat. Pat confides in Jack that her shattered ideals of love and marriage caused her to fall in love with Jimmie. Jack tries to convince Pat that what she feels for Jimmie is not real love. Pat believes that by her disclosures she has forfeited Jack's friendship, but he assures her he will stand by as long as she wants him to do so.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

"Oh, there's that Mrs. Brownley," Pat whispered. "Somehow I can't keep my eyes off her." In a large rocker on the veranda thrust from the center of the hotel like a pointing finger toward the sea, Mrs. Brownley sat, dressed in her favorite sand color. The elderly Mr. Drexel was talking eagerly to her.

The woman was a flattering listener. Her soft hazel eyes glistened with interest, never wandering. She seemed to settle into a chair in a position of complete repose.

Watching her in this listening attitude, it always appeared to Patricia that here was instinctive womanhood displaying her charms.

Without being pretty, Mrs. Brownley gave an impression of exceeding prettiness.

Unlike the modern girl, never seen in one position long enough to be fully admired, Mrs. Brownley rested in prettiness. Each slow move pointed it, giving one ample time to ponder it.

Most of the men knew her, yet she made no noticeable attempt to engage their attention. If they spoke in passing she replied pleasantly; if they stopped to talk, she listened flatteringly. She said little on her side, and appeared always at rest, yet never bored or abstracted. An aloof but interested spectator of the hectic passing show of life.

She would sit for hours on the verandas, in the lounges, moving at mealtime into the dining room or to the pavilion for tea. Sometimes she walked in the gardens or engaged a wheel chair for an hour or so. She never danced, rarely swam, and then only in the pool, never in the sea though she was a good swimmer.

The men spoke of her as "a lovely little thing." "Heavens knows why," said the women. "She's neither blonde nor brunette; not more than five feet four and must weigh one hundred and forty pounds. She has a lovely nose and eyes, but her mouth is wide, and her jaw really square."

Women followed her with their eyes, interested in spite of themselves. Now and then one of them addressed her, driven by curiosity and vague resentment. She showed them the same gentle interest that she accorded the men.

"For heaven's sake, where have you two been?" cried Mary Lou.

Patricia wondered if she were lonely and what the secret of her charm was. "I'm going to go and talk to her some day," she said, relinquishing her bride to the page who had run out to meet them.

"Why?" Jack asked, giving her his hand.

"Oh, I don't know. The women act sort of horrid to her, and she seems so sweet and gracious when people speak to her; yet never forward and pushing."

But, though they looked into each other's eyes many times, Patricia and Mrs. Brownley did not speak during their stay in Palm Beach.

"For heaven's sake, where have you two been?" cried Mary Lou, rushing out to meet them, her round dark eyes alight. Everything about Mary Lou was round and alight when not determinedly bored.

"We looked everywhere for you. Did you forget today was the Indian Sun Dance? Oh, it was too thrilling. So savage. The women all wore millions of strings of glass beads and dresses made of strips of calico sewed crosswise like the American flag, and they had every color, red and yellow and everything. The skirts were huge and down to their ankles. And the men wore smocks to the knees of the same, with a tight belt at the waist. But they're going to dance again this afternoon, if it doesn't cloud up. They won't dance unless the sun shines."

"Let's hope the sun shines," chuckled Jack. "It must have been ravishing."

"It was. Where were you two anyway? Arthur Savage has been looking like a thunder cloud all morning. If the Indians had seen him they wouldn't have danced."

She leaned toward Patricia and whispered, "And Mr. Warren has been wandering around like a lost goat or lamb, whichever it is that gets lost."

Aloud she added, "He asked me if I'd seen you, and I told him I hadn't. That you and Jack went riding every morning at some ungodly hour and you hadn't got back this time—maybe you'd eloped."

"We did," grinned Jack.

Mary Lou stopped suddenly, her little dark face aglitter. "Not married."

"Oh, no," laughed Patricia. One laughed in public no matter what happened. "One doesn't have to elope these days to marry. The old people are too delighted to have that ending."

They were joined by "the gang." "What are you going to wear tonight, Pat?" They all talked at once. "It's fancy dress, you know. No cutting in, I hear, intermissions and programs and everything."

"If I don't get my program filled at once I'll be scared stiff. At least with cutting in you can keep dancing. Your first partner has to stick to you till somebody saves him," cried Mary Lou.

"I never see you dancing long with anyone," said Jack.

"No, but you never can tell what may happen if men have to walk up to you dispassionately and sign a document to dance with you. It's so coldblooded and legal looking. When he sees you going it's wild and woolly he thinks you're a red hot mamma and rushes in and grabs you off before he's had time to think. You have to think over programs."

"Come up to my room and see my dress, Pat," demanded Rainey Todd, the gang baby who cultivated a lisp and a vacant stare. "Or I should say, trousers. Pale blue satin with buckles at the knees and a lavender satin coat. I'm so booful in it." Her shallow blue eyes were almost intelligently shining.

They dragged Patricia away, leaving Jack on the veranda. "My dear," Mary Lou whispered. "Mr. Warren was simply wild when I told him you hadn't gotten back from your ride. He said: 'I hope they haven't had an accident.'"

"And his face was positively white," drawled Lita Moore, whose "line" was languor as suiting her tall slinky figure and thin pale face. "He's walked a thousand times out to the road to see if he could see you."

"Did he say anything besides that?" asked Patricia, gloating over Jimmie's misery.

"No, but he looked volumes," from Mary Lou. "Positive volumes."

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Is the wrestling game on the level?

Most of the sporting editors of the country are inclined to believe it is not and few of them are backward about expressing their convictions.

Joel McCrea, who plays a college wrestler turned professional in "The Sport Parade," his latest RKO-Radio Picture coming to the Cliftona Theater Wednesday only declares that whether the game is crooked or not, he has lots of sympathy for the wrestlers.

"I have had some rough roles in my screen career," says Joel "but I never took such a beating in my life as I did during the wrestling bouts we staged for this picture. I pride myself on keeping my body in perfect shape, and do plenty of swimming, riding, boxing and fencing to keep it so, but after half an hour of wrestling I was tired all over."

"If the wrestling game isn't on the level, it certainly is a silly way to make money, taking that much punishment just to give people entertainment."

COMING THURSDAY

Blind Crosby, featured in "The Big Broadcast," coming to the Cliftona Theater, Thursday, Friday and Saturday with Thursday matinee, was born in Spokane, Wash.

AT THE GRAND

The sensational trial of Doris Keayon for the murder of her husband is one of the dramatic highlights of Tiffany Productions "The Man Called Back," now at the Grand Theater.

Realizing the importance of having these courtroom scenes authentic, the technical staff invaded the Los Angeles County Law Library in their research for the proper procedure in the English Criminal Courts.

Despite the fact that English law is the parent of our own American law, we have departed widely from many of the English customs.

One of the interesting details of difference is the confining of everyone in the courtroom to one particular spot. There is no moving about, except for the coming and going of witnesses. Everyone has his designated position in the room and he must stay in that place while court is in session. There is no chance for the English barrister to employ "dramatics" either in cross-examination or in his jury plea.

Years ago, prisons not being what they are today, the occupants of the Bench took what they thought were measures to prevent themselves from contracting "prison fever" from the prisoners, by strewing sweet-scented medicinal herbs on the floor of the bench and carrying bouquets of flowers. The custom of the bouquets is still observed.

Ashville, Jackson Teams Promise To Be Stronger

Kaub's Crew Begins Activities Wednesday Eve; Concludes On at Jackson.

That the Pickaway-co high school basketball team will be a hot one was further assured today when Coach Al Kauber of Ashville, and Coach C. J. Lampi of Jackson-twp, announced that their teams are going to be stronger than in the last few years.

The Ashville mentor reports that he has five lettermen back from last year, three of whom were regulars. The first practice of the school's team was held on Nov. 14 with 24 athletes in uniform. Coach Kauber is making no predictions but believed his team has a better chance to go places than it has in a long while.

BEGIN WEDNESDAY

The schedule opens Wednesday evening when Hamilton-twp, Franklin-co, will be entertained on the Ashville court.

The remainder of the schedule, with one open date, follows:

Dec. 2—Atlanta, there;
Dec. 9—Pickaway there;
Dec. 16—Scioto, there;
Dec. 23—West Jefferson, here;
Jan. 6—Open;
Jan. 13—Muhlenberg, here;
Jan. 20—Scioto, here;
Jan. 27—Jackson, here;
Feb. 3—Williamsport, there;
Feb. 10—Monroe, here.

With Mary Young, all-county center for three years gone by way of graduation, Mrs. Morrison, girl's coach, faces the task of filling this berth. Miss Young is the only veteran the Ashville girls lose and this team which has been high in the county standing for quite a while is expected back at the peak again this season.

VETS MUST WORK

Now to get back to Jackson-twp. Eldon Hill, news reporter for that school, discloses that several of last year's lettermen may not make the first team.

"Coach Lampi has been having a tough time selecting his varsity team," Hill reports, "and it is doubtful if all of last year's regulars receive first team berths. The center position appears to be the hardest fought with three youths seeking the bat-off position. Buch, Batts and Majors are fighting it out for the two forward posts and a real contest is on for the guard jobs."

Scrimmages at the west of the river school have been getting hotter and much development has been noted in the squad in the past week.

Bobby Holtzman, vest-pocket forward, has been hitting the hoop regularly and can be expected to snatch one starting position before long.

'HUNK' WORRIED

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Nov. 22.—Hunk Anderson, Notre Dame's coach, was a pessimistic soul today as he sent his Ramblers through another offensive drill in preparation for Saturday's game with Army. Unless something happens to impede Army's running attack or to suddenly improve Notre Dame's blocking abilities, the contest may turn out disastrously for the Irish, Coach Anderson asserted.

"A slow field," said Hunk, "will slow up Vidal and his seven running mates of the Army backfield. But, Army will outweigh us from 15 to 20 pounds to a man and that should be enough to push us all over the field. So, we're wrong no matter what the weather is."

Blocking has been the chief sore-spot of Notre Dame's present season and yesterday the Ramblers devoted the entire practice session to this phase of the game.

'Forgotten Man,' That's Berry of Illinois

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The "forgotten man" is a moot subject. But his identity appears to be a question. We nominate Gil Berry.

Yes sir! Gil Berry. As much football player as was ever buried up in molasses, jerseys, pads, and bandages.

But, unfortunately, Berry is the captain, and half of the backfield of a "forgotten team"—Bob Zuppke's Illini.

For three years, Berry has been trying to get away. A mediocre line and average backs have made him just a good ball player on a mediocre team. Apparently Gil is a bit weary of mediocrity this fall, and has decided to be 90 percent of the Illini ball club.

Stagg's rejuvenated Chicago team whipped Illinois in all the newspapers of the country weeks before the encounter. But not Gil Berry.

This "forgotten man" gave Chicago something to remember him by. Known as an accurate passer, he unleashed his good right arm, and tossed three passes in four plays that netted some forty-odd yards and a touchdown.

And then—shades of old "77" and a red-headed demon named Grange. Gil grabbed a punt, raced through the entire Chicago team alone and neglected, and finished his 70-yard jaunt with another touchdown.

All of which made him a hero for a day. Even on the Illini campus, he is better known as an Adonis than as a footballer. For he was just selected the most handsome male at the University. But that is no salve to Gil. For he is a football player. And would rather be known as such.

We remember when he was a freshman and ripped the varsity line to shreds, slashed off tackle, and unloosed long passes that made the varsity fear scrimmage with the frosh more than the Saturday games. He received more press notices then, than now.

Yes sir. Gil Berry is the "forgotten man."

NAME CAPTAINS

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 22.—Princeton's football team will be captained next season by Arthur S. Lane of Arlington, Mass. Lane was a tackle this year but broke his collar bone in an early game and was benched for the rest of the season.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Pete Zimmer, backfield performer, today had been elected by his comrades to captain the University of Chicago football team next year. Bill Cassells, tackle, was voted the team's most valuable player in the season just ended.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 22.—William "Dutch" Fehring, giant tackle, will be the captain of Purdue's 1933 football team. He was elected by his team-mates last night. Roy Horstmann, fullback, was named the most valuable Bolliermaker player.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 22.—Bob Lassiter of Charlotte, N. C., will captain the Yale football eleven in 1933.

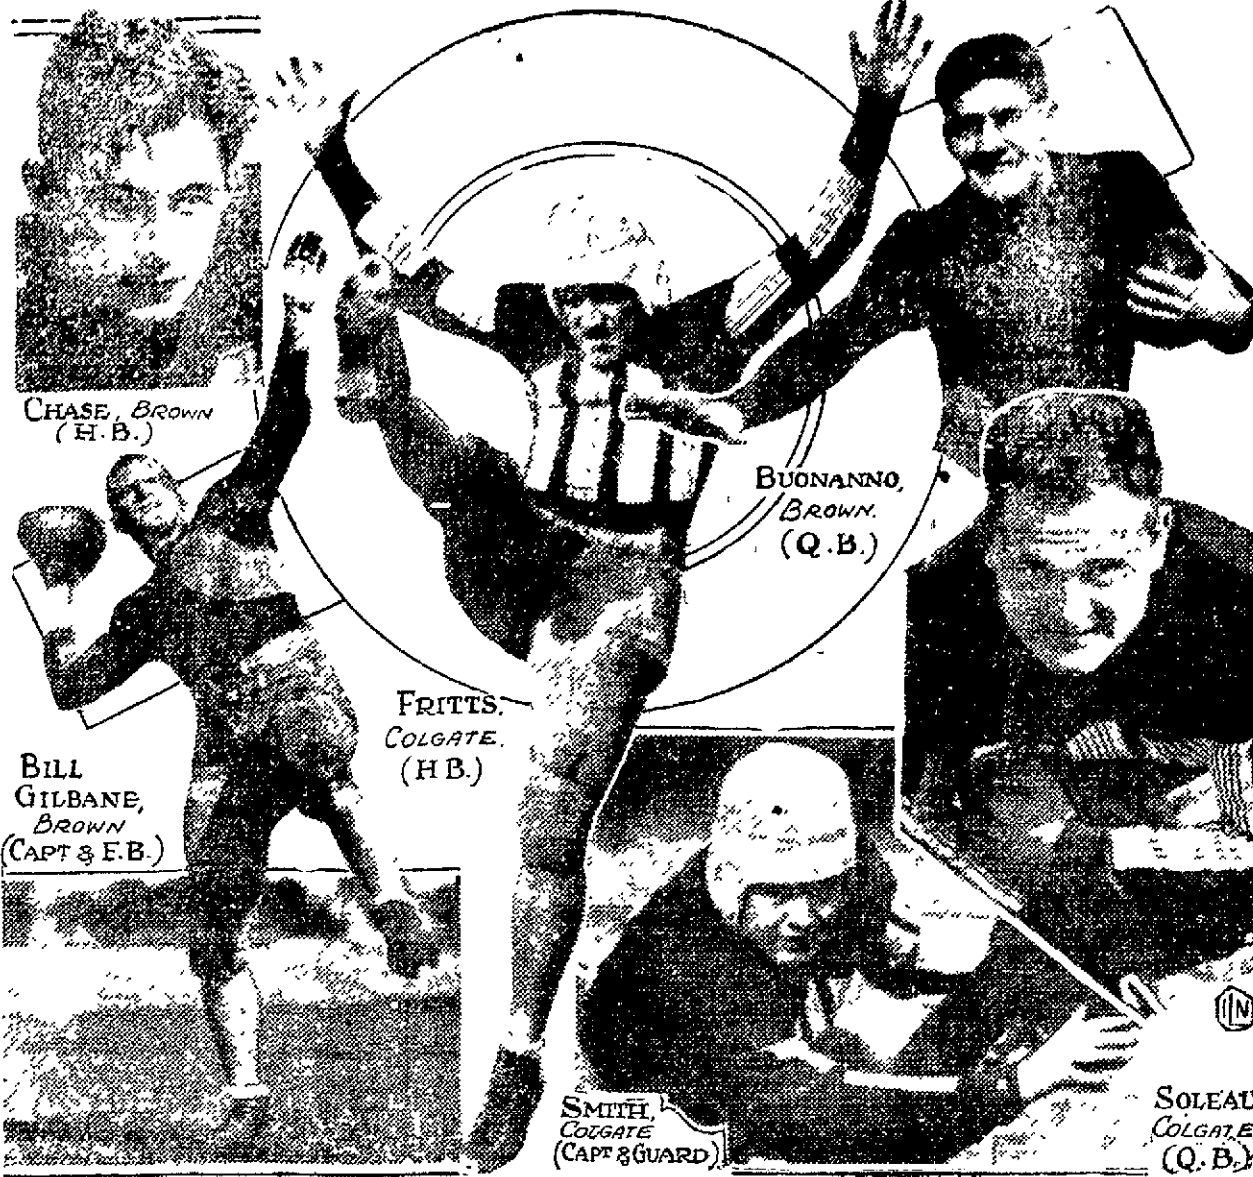

He was elected to the post by his team-mates at a banquet here last night. Lassiter, a back, was the outstanding player as Harvard was smothered by the Elis last Saturday.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 22.—Herman J. Walser, fullback, today possessed the honor of election to the captaincy of the University of Illinois football team of 1933. The squad voted Capt. Gil Berry the most valuable player of the 1932 campaign.

Mr. Clyde Micheal is again on the job and will call on the rural subscribers of Pickaway County to renew your subscription to THE CIRCLEVILLE HERALD

What a Thanksgiving Feast for the Grid Fans!

Here are some of the star actors in the Thanksgiving including Yale, Harvard and Columbia, were able to roll up only 21 points against the Bears. 'Twill be the unbeaten Brown and Colgate eleven meet for a Thanksgiving feast with all the trimmings and the winner will probably go West to meet Southern California New Year's Day for the national title.

Shipbuilding Low

WASHINGTON—Shipping under way in the world's shipbuilding countries on the first of October amounted to only 20,000 tons, the lowest figure in more than 30 years, and some 200,000 tons lower than on June 30, of this year, according to the Commerce Department's Transportation Division.

281 Hulks in River

FORT BENTON, Mo.—The shallow tortuous channel of the Missouri river still holds all but 11 of the 295 boats sunk during the days of river navigation in the northwest, according to a time residents along the river. Special interest is being paid to tales of boats sunk between here and St. Louis while bringing cargoes of liquor upstream.

PACKERS FACE LOSS OF LEAD

Green Bay Team Must Play Friedman's Dodgers In New York Thursday.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The Green Bay Packers face the loss of first place in the National Football League race Thursday when they invade Brooklyn to face Benny Friedman's Dodgers. This clash is one of three circuit contests slated Thanksgiving Day.

The Cardinals and Bears meet in a strictly Chicago rivalry, while the New York Giants invade Stapleton in another neighborhood scrap.

The second place Portsmouth Spartans are idle and a victory for Brooklyn over the Packers would enable them to take the lead from the three-year champions who suffered their initial setback last Sunday against the Giants.

The New York-Staples struggle in Staten Island will settle the greater New York grid laurels for the Giants, with a victory over their local rivals, Brooklyn and Stapleton, need one more win to clinch the metropolitan crown.

SCIOTO-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

The Student Council met Tuesday Nov. 15. They decided that one member of the Council should stay in the office each period of the day. Several other matters were discussed among which were an honor study hall and arm bands for each Council member to wear as a distinction among the other students.

All the members of the high school met in the Assembly Hall the last period on Friday for a pep meeting. Forest Gloyd resigned as cheer leader; Floyd Lounkin has taken his place. Several yells and songs completed the meeting. The typing classes are going to mimeograph enough copies of the yells and songs so that each student may have one for his use.

The Senior Class is glad to welcome Frank Kauffeld back into his class after an absence of two weeks because of a scarlet fever quarantine.

On Wednesday Nov. 23 the whole school will meet together for a Thanksgiving Chapel program. The first six grades will furnish the entertainment. After the program there will be a pep meeting to arouse interest in the opening basketball game which will be played that same night.

Our basketball schedule for this season is as follows:
Nov. 23, Muhlenberg here;
Dec. 2, Washington here;
Dec. 9, Darby there;
Dec. 16, Ashville here;
Jan. 6, Muhlenberg here;
Jan. 13, Washington Circleville;
Jan. 20, Ashville there;
Jan. 27, Monroe here;
Feb. 3, Jackson there;
Feb. 10, Darby here;

Unusual Local Architecture Discussed In Monday Club

The second program on American Architecture was presented at the Monday club meeting Monday evening with Mrs. C. C. Watts, chairman of the American Architecture division in charge.

After a program on Early Architecture of Southern Ohio given by Prof. Frank J. Roosevelt of Ohio university, a few weeks ago it is interesting to know that some of the old homes in this city are prototypes of some of the finest early American architecture.

The subject of Mrs. Howard Jones' informal talk was "Interesting Local Homes." She told of the old homes as she remembered them, selecting six or eight which were especially interesting to her. The following excerpts are taken from a paper written and read by Miss Mary Wilder, the subject of which is "Unusual Doorways and Ironwork in Circleville."

According to history, only one house already existed within the borders of Circleville, when it was being built. This house was built of oak logs, with floors and lath of hickory, with solid walnut woodwork and quaint fireplaces. Other houses, built were probably much like this one, which stood for a century.

In 1814 the Court House, the first brick building, was ready for service. Daniel Dreisbach received the contract to construct this building. This brick court house, with its cupola, was approximately the style generally used for public buildings of that day, but strange to say had eight sides instead of four.

Mr. Wittich's view of Circleville in 1836 is our earliest picture. We know that the first houses were of log, soon improved by weatherboarding, the windows were neither countered difficulties when seeking registration for their machines last year, Ohio Motor Vehicle Bureau records reveal, by reason of their failure to prevent proper bills of sale, as required by law.

Incidentally, points out Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, "where the term 'bill of sale' is used under the license law, it includes bill of sale, clerk's certificate, sworn statement of ownership, certificate of title or memorandum certificate."

The Motor Vehicle Bureau's instructions to deputy registrars points out that the Clerk of Courts is responsible for the correctness of bills of sale filed, and deputy commissioners must not accept any bills of sale for used cars until after they have filed with the Clerk of Courts of the county.

Where a Bill of Sale dated after January 1, 1932 and prior to December 10, 1932 is presented that does not show "License Issued" or "Transfer Issued", the individual will be required to pay for a set of plates or make a transfer, as the case may be, before 1933 license plates may be issued.

If the Bill of Sale has not been stamped through an error of a Deputy, the individual must produce the proper certificate of registration covering the car that is named in the Bill of Sale he is presenting. If the individual insists that such motor vehicle has not been used, it will be necessary for him to make affidavit to that effect.

Delay and confusion may be avoided by owners by hunting up their Bills of Sale and seeing that they are in order before applications for new licenses are made, say the authorities.

Capital University Concert Series To Present "The Nuremburg Doll"

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22.—In keeping with the holiday season the Capital University Concert Series, Columbus, presents its fairy opera "The Nuremburg Doll" by Adolph Adam, featuring Lydia Dozier of the Cincinnati Zoo Opera Company, Friday evening December 2 at 8:15 and Saturday afternoon December 3 at 3:00 in Mess Hall.

The opera itself will star Miss Dozier in more ways than one. Familiar in the repertoire of German light opera which is the work of Adolph Adam, famous for his "Christmas Song," had never been given in English until Miss Dozier made a translation of its libretto. With the assistance of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra her translation was presented at a recent benefit there.

Miss Dozier herself sings the title role. Her light, flexible soprano will be remembered from a previous appearance with Capital University's student orchestra. She has sung for six seasons with the Cincinnati Zoo Opera.

The performance of the opera proper will be preceded by Christmas music by the Conservatory Orchestra under Wilbur Crist. The descriptive fantasia, "The Toy Shop," by Colby, will paint tone pictures of Santa's toy shop at the North pole, Santa and his gnomes making and testing toys on Christmas eve, harnessing the reindeer, the ride over the clouds, etc. The opera itself will also be accompanied by the Conservatory Orchestra. The fairy opera performances as presented by the Capital University Concert Series are famous for their appeal to children and grown-ups alike.

NEWS OF HOMES AND HOME FOLKS

VOL. 3. NO. 46 Published by STEVENSON'S Tuesday, November 22, 1932

Suppose you put two red-blooded youngsters in one bed. What's the result? TROUBLE! One of them will require but little covering while the other one will want heaps of it. One of them will want to sleep, the other will want to frolic.

That was the problem facing Mrs. G—. Her two girls slept in the same bed, but they didn't "hitch." Mrs. G— came down to 148 W. Main and ordered out a pair of twin beds for them. And "it won't be long now" until the Dove of Peace will be hovering around in that bed room.

There's a lot of grown-ups that sleep two-in-a-bed that would be better off if they used twins. One of them will roll and toss, keeping the other person awake. Or, it may be, one of the sleepers may persist in sticking her cold feet on dear old husband's warm tootsies. And then there is trouble. Solve this problem by having us install twin beds for you, if you are bothered with this common complaint.

It's easily understood why our Estate Heatrola installations since the first of August of 1932, compared with the same period in 1931, are 133 per cent greater, or why our 1932 installations, since the first of the year, are 107 per cent greater than the entire year of 1931. Folks KNOW that the Estate gives the satisfaction that they desire, and that the prices are no greater than other circulating heaters. Why, man alive, Estate Heatrolas start as low as $34.75!

There's the family of Mr. and Mrs. S—, out in Washington township. Mr. S— has been looking around since the early part of October. He wanted to be sure that he was making no mistake. He asked us if his neighbor, Mr. K—, had an estate and we assured him that he had one. Finally, last Friday afternoon, we delivered a large size Heatrola to Mr. S—'s home. There are three babies in the S— family. It's necessary to keep the floor warm for them and the Estate Heatrola will do that. It'll keep away the sniffles and the sniffles.

Heard at Berger Hospital: Nurse: "Are you going to give my patient something to slow down his heart action?" Dr. Courtright: "Yes, an elderly nurse."

(Wonder which one of the nurses asked this question?)

Mrs. G—, our latest Pyrofax gas user, was asked how she would like to give up her gas stove. (You know, she lives in the country where natural gas is not available.) Mrs. G— said, "Well, I'd hate to give it up, I can tell you."

She has a combination range, one with a coal fire-box in it. The coal fire is used for heating the kitchen and Pyrofax is used for cooking and baking.

There's a Rountown family that will have a beautiful new dining room suite for Thanksgiving. You're next. Do it now. It's not too late.
